ABOUT GATEWAY FOR CANCER RESEARCH

Accelerating Tomorrow's Cancer Treatments Today

At Gateway for Cancer Research, we believe meaningful progress in cancer care begins with investing in the possibilities of tomorrow.
As one of the few nonprofits dedicated exclusively to funding Phase I and Phase II cancer clinical trials, Gateway advances innovative, patient-centered research at a pivotal stage, when scientific discoveries begin their journey toward becoming new treatment options for patients.

Since 1991, Gateway has partnered with leading clinician-scientists and research institutions to advance new approaches to cancer treatment, with a focus on improving patient outcomes and quality of life. From novel therapies to decentralized clinical trials that reduce barriers to participation, Gateway is helping reshape not only how treatments are developed, but also how patients access research opportunities.

This commitment has helped bring hope to more than 45,000 patients and families, reflecting the profound reach of research made possible through philanthropy. Every trial Gateway funds undergoes a rigorous scientific review process, ensuring that donor investments support research with meaningful potential to advance cancer care.

100% of every dollar donated to Gateway goes directly to funding cancer research, reinforcing our unwavering commitment to patients and the pursuit of better treatment options.

Bringing Innovation Closer to Home

Through the Gateway Golf Classic, this commitment will extend to the Louisville community. Donations raised through the event will support a clinical trial at Brown Cancer Center, selected through Gateway's established scientific review and approval process.

By advancing research close to home, the Gateway Golf Classic offers an opportunity to make a meaningful difference for patients and families in the Louisville community while supporting discoveries with the potential to improve cancer care far beyond Kentucky.
