LETTER FROM THE CHAIRMAN

Dearest Friends and Distinguished Colleagues,

What a year Gateway has had!

I am both honored and humbled by the outpouring of generosity, support and dedication by donors, caregivers and researchers who have helped advance the standard of cancer treatment for patients.

Our Gateway mission has always been—and will always be—to fund meaningful and breakthrough clinical trials worldwide that help people living with cancer to feel better, live longer and conquer cancer TODAY! We have a sense of urgency about this mission because people living with cancer need better options NOW!

At Gateway, we only fund early phase cancer clinical trials because that's where we can make a real difference for patients. By focusing on Phase I and II studies that are tried on real people for the first time, we give these patients more hope and more options focused upon more cures, fewer side effects, and longer lives.

“Less struggle. More life!”

At the heart of every cancer research grant which Gateway supports, there is also a laser focus on the quality of life as reported by the patient.

Gateway amplifies the voices of our patients in everything we do. We search for studies that help people cope better with the treatments they many times endure.

We know traditional cancer treatments achieve positive responses for many people; however, not without significant side-effects that can be devastating. Gateway-funded researchers are committed to our vision of the current state of cancer care: one-size does not fit all. Gateway believes in providing therapies tailored to the unique biology of each patient. Now, with the level of genetic data available, as well as our growing understanding of epigenetics, we are empowered to invest in research that is both personalized and precise.

In the pages that follow, we highlight Gateway achievements, activities, and the cancer clinical trials made possible because of our shared vision that “it is always and only about the patient!”

This year marks 24 years in which Gateway has carried this banner on behalf of patients. We salute all those who have enrolled in clinical trials for they are the real heroes—paving the way for all of us.

With relentless passion and gratitude for your loyal support,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'R. J. Stephenson'. The signature is fluid and cursive, with a long horizontal line extending to the right.

Richard J Stephenson
Chairman of the Board of Directors
Gateway for Cancer Research

Dear Friends,

“Community” is one of the most powerful words in our language. When I think of that word, I envision people interacting with one another and affecting each other in positive ways. Community is why Gateway exists today: connecting generous donors to clinical researchers to patients and caregivers so, together, we can change the face of cancer NOW!

We’ve continued to grow and develop our community in many ways during this past fiscal year. Some of the highlights include the following:

- » Contributions of $3,295,879 were given by donors, like you!
- » Cures Gala 2014 – Heroes Among Us raised nearly $2.2 million for cancer research.
- » Third Annual Cures Ahead Golf Tournament surpassed expectations with nearly $220,000 raised and 100 golfers in attendance.
- » The Gateway website was successfully re-launched with new Gateway branding and messaging.
- » Patient Impact Framework was created to measure 19 indicators of Gateway-funded research impact, including patient voice, patient quality of life and clinical trial effectiveness.
- » Thirteen new and innovative clinical trials were added to our funding portfolio, creating new relationships with doctors at Duke University, Stanford, University of Michigan, Northwestern, City of Hope, Dana Farber, Seattle Children’s Hospital, University of Montreal, University of Iowa, Washington University and other renowned cancer treatment institutions.
- » As part of our strategic plan, Gateway branched out beyond Chicagoland during this fiscal year, with Regional Development Officers serving our donors in the eastern and western regions. We continue to diversify our funding base by developing philanthropic relationships with individuals.

Every day we are making advances toward our mission to fund meaningful and breakthrough clinical trials worldwide that help people living with cancer to feel better, live longer and conquer cancer TODAY!

One of the highlights of the year for me was the opportunity to meet Maddy Oliver, her mother Caroline, and her best friend, Emily. I knew Maddy’s story (which is detailed for you on the following page) and it’s truly heartwarming to know that she is thriving after her ordeal as a 17-year-old dealing with sarcoma. However, meeting Maddy in person and experiencing her energy, as well as the amazing support of her family and friends – well, THAT was AWESOME! Maddy is a perfect example of what can happen when a community comes together to conquer cancer.

I’m honored to work for Gateway; on behalf of Maddy and thousands of others who are living with cancer—thank you for being part of the Gateway community, making a difference every day.

Warm regards,

Teresa Hall Bartels
President
Gateway for Cancer Research

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

“Thank you so much for supporting Gateway. I’m living proof that clinical trials do work.”

PATIENT IMPACT » MADDY OLIVER

Maddy Oliver was 17 years old when she learned the pain in her hip was more than a muscle strain. She was diagnosed with osteosarcoma, a malignant sarcoma of the bone that has one of the lowest survival rates for pediatric cancers.

Standard therapy for osteosarcoma includes high doses of chemotherapy and surgery to remove the tumor in the bone. Chemotherapy for this type of cancer improves survival, but can also come with substantial side effects including kidney damage and hearing loss.

Instead of traditional chemotherapy, her care team discussed participating in a Gateway-funded clinical trial led by Dr. Frank Balis of Children’s Hospital of Philadelphia that was designed to reduce the side effects of patients with osteosarcoma.

“I was very happy to be a part of Dr. Balis’ clinical trial because I know it’s helping many kids in the future...from the clinical trial I was hoping my kidneys and my hearing would not be damaged.”

Maddy received her final chemotherapy treatment in March 2014. She is now in her first year of college and living a normal healthy life.

Clinical Trial Recap

Advancing Cancer Treatment

Dr. Frank Balis leads the Gateway-funded cancer clinical trial designed to reduce treatment side effects for young patients with osteosarcoma.

Current treatment regimens include cisplatin and high-dose methotrexate which can cause irreversible kidney and hearing damage.

The clinical trial is testing the use of a prescription drug for reducing stomach acid (proton pump inhibitors) to block the uptake of chemotherapy drugs by kidney cells without blocking the effect of the chemotherapy drugs on killing cancer cells.

They believe the acid reducers will also protect hearing in the same manner.

A team of researchers led by William Gillanders, MD at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis designed a breast cancer vaccine for patients with metastatic breast cancer.

The new vaccine causes the body's immune system to target a protein called mammaglobin-A, that is expressed at high levels in most breast cancers. As such, mammaglobin-A is a very attractive target for a breast cancer vaccine.

The vaccine is designed to be especially good at destroying hidden cells not detected by traditional radiation or chemotherapy. A Phase I clinical trial funded by Gateway for Cancer Research, evaluated the safety and immunogenicity of the vaccine in patients with metastatic breast cancer.

The trial not only demonstrated the vaccine's safety and ability to stimulate the immune system, it also appeared to slow breast cancer growth. Clinical trial participants experienced virtually no side effects and enjoyed increased quality of life and significantly higher survival rates over longer periods of time.

For his extraordinary work, Gateway presented Dr. William Gillanders the 2015 Cancer Researcher of the Year Award.

CANCER RESEARCHER OF THE YEAR >>

WILLIAM GILLANDERS, MD

"Being able to target mammaglobin is exciting because it is expressed broadly in up to 80 percent of breast cancers, but not at meaningful levels in other tissues. In theory, this means we could treat a large number of breast cancer patients with potentially fewer side effects."

“Organizations like Gateway are not just important, they are really essential. This is a great example of innovative research that could change the face of cancer therapy. This project on the basic science and clinical trial level was turned down by other traditional funding routes because it was seen as too risky or too innovative.”

FUNDING INNOVATIVE CANCER RESEARCH

Clinical Trial Name
Phase 1 and Expanded
Imaging Study of BLZ-100 in Pediatric Patients with Primary Brain Tumors

Researcher
Sarah Leary, MD

Institution
University of Washington,
Seattle Children's Hospital

Brain tumors are the leading cause of death in children. Children who are able to have their tumor completely removed at the time of surgery are far less likely to have a tumor grow back or relapse.

However, complete removal of the tumor cannot always be done safely because it's often very difficult to distinguish the healthy brain tissue from the tumor with the naked eye.

During this fiscal year, Gateway committed funding to a clinical trial called Phase I and Expanded Imaging Study of BLZ-100 in Pediatric Patients with Primary Brain Tumors. BLZ-100 is a drug, given the day before surgery, which attaches to the tumor tissue and glows under fluorescent light. The BLZ-100 drug is currently being studied and given to children undergoing brain surgery for tumor removal.

This clinical trial will determine whether BLZ-100 is safe for use in children and if it attaches to the children's brain tumor tissue. If effective, this "molecular flashlight" has potential to revolutionize surgery for tumors. Laboratory studies and the first trial in adult patients have shown few, if any, side effects from the drug.

Over 1000 heroes united at the Sheraton Chicago on a mission to help those battling cancer. Jarrett Payton, the Master of Ceremonies for the second year, led the evening and shared his personal story about losing his superhero, Walter Payton, to cancer 15 years ago.

Bruce Lubin, Executive Managing Director and President of The PrivateBank's Illinois Commercial, was the Gala Honorary Chair and the first Gateway Impact Award recipient. The award recognized Lubin for his longstanding commitment to Gateway's mission to help people living with cancer to feel better, live longer and conquer cancer TODAY!

Musical entertainment was provided by the Netherlands sensation, Guido Dieteren and Guido's Orchestra which combines pop genre with classical music. As a tribute to Guido's father who fought valiantly against cancer, Guido composed "Song of Hope" which was performed for the first time at the Gala.

Academy Award nominee Terrence Howard motivated the crowd through his passionate monologue about his mother and her battle with cancer while highlighting the importance of funding Phase I and Phase II cancer clinical trials at Gateway.

The Gateway Associates Board hosted its inaugural Be A Hero Cocktail Reception at the Sheraton Chicago in late November. Nearly 200 heroes united to help Gateway for Cancer Research fund cutting-edge clinical trials that offer hope through more precise and targeted therapies to eliminate cancer without the physical and emotional side effects of conventional therapy.

The Gateway Star Award was given to Rhonda Kokot in recognition of all the ways that Rhonda supports Gateway. The Star Award was created to recognize a volunteer who works tirelessly, often behind the scenes, demonstrating significant commitment and passion for Gateway's mission. Rhonda Kokot serves as Secretary for the Board of Directors and was the inspiration behind founding the Associates Board. She continues to serve as a liaison between the Board of Directors and the Associates Board. In addition, she serves on Gateway's Nominating and Governance Committee as well as its Marketing and Strategy Committee. Rhonda's firm, Simple Truth, provided pro bono brand strategy and guidelines for Gateway's rebranding initiative. She has completed a half-marathon in 34 of 50 states, raising more than $50,000 to support clinical trials through Gateway. She plans to reach her goal of running in all 50 states by 2019.
